This 94-page issue contains interviews conducted between 2011 and 2014. True and unvarnished views behind the scenes are presented by Garner Simmons (scriptwriter and story editor), Karen Davis (set costumer), Laura Lee (hair stylist), who does not only solve the mystery about Jane Wyman's wigs, but also shares more secrets about other people's hair pieces, Mac Stuber (one of the local Napa Valley teamsters) and Helen Catado, who was casting extras in the Wine Country. Furthermore, Spring Mountain's lady of the manor from those days, Susan Robbins, remembers filming from the first minute.

In addition, a feature article covers the celebration of Jane Wyman's star on the Palm Spring Walk of Stars (2014). Also, a memorial report about Jane Wyman by Tom Tagliente will round things up.

The Secret FALCON FILES — Volume 1* (2012):

The newsletter (103 pages) presents top secret information directly from the producers' vault:

DFCF president Thomas J. Pucher researched a large number of old production documents, including seasonal bibles (reference documents for a whole year), story projections, episode outlines, episode breakdowns, scene breakdowns, scripts in various drafts, CBS program practices, shooting schedules, call sheets, daily production reports, day out of days, contracts, billing information, budget sheets, daily hot cost status reports, notes on casting auditions, memos, floor plans of interior sets and many other papers.

The new newsletter is an analysis of the original concept for each season — compared with what finally made it to the screen. It concentrates on the great pieces of historic documentation of how the series, a specific season, a particular episode or maybe just one storyline was developed. Some direct quotations from the production documents will round up the picture of the serial's development.

Vol. 1 takes an in-depth look on the development of The Vintage Years and the redevelopment into Falcon Ridge and Falcon Crest as well as the bibles of seasons 1 through 3. It also includes detailed listings of many actors and actresses, who auditioned for the various parts, and a lot more secrets you have never heard of before.
